In The Glass:

Located almost dead-center in the appellation, Rue de Chaux is perhaps the most quintessentially "Nuits-Saint-Georges" among Chezeaux's premier crus. Jerome owns a mere 0.29 hectares in this steep, topsoil-deficient vineyard, and his ever-elegant touch yields a wine of both grace and power. Darkly fruited, dense, and ever-so-slightly brooding, it also offers an enchanting savory-spicy perfume.
